Derek has “the ability to concentrate on the real issues” and is “very practical, hard-working, diligent and a pleasure to work with.”

Client – Chambers Canada

Derek advises clients on a broad range of corporate matters, including corporate finance, banking, private equity, public-private partnership transactions, corporate reorganizations and general corporate matters.

He works in close partnership with his clients, advising banks, private equity firms, manufacturing and service businesses of all sizes – in Canada, the U.S., Europe and Asia.

He has significant expertise in advising clients on major syndicated credit facilities, acting for both borrowers and lenders. He also regularly consults on public-private infrastructure projects.

Derek teaches the Advanced Business Law course at Osgoode Hall Law School and has also lectured at Western University and University of Toronto Faculty of Law.
