Sumeet advises clients in the life sciences and technology industries on their most complex commercial transactions and compliance matters.

Sumeet is an intellectual property, technology and life sciences lawyer and a registered Canadian trademark agent. His practice focuses on providing legal and strategic counsel on a broad range of commercial arrangements, including technology, regulatory and intellectual property-related aspects of mergers and acquisitions, intellectual property and technology licensing. He also advises on service agreements as well as joint venture, partnership and research and development agreements. Sumeet also provides counsel on matters relating to privacy compliance and trademark clearance and prosecution.

He has extensive experience providing regulatory, product marketing and compliance counsel to companies in the biopharmaceutical, medical device and digital health industries.

Sumeet began his legal career at the Toronto office of an international law firm where he practiced in the areas of intellectual property, life sciences and technology law. Before joining Davies, he held senior in-house counsel roles at a multinational biopharmaceutical company and a medical technology company.
